

GP WITH A SPECIAL INTEREST TRAINING

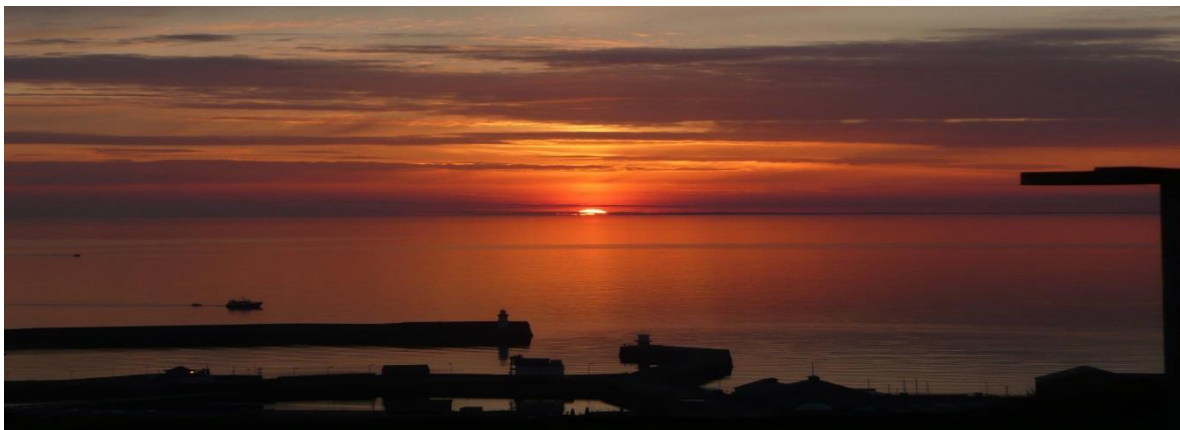

WOULD YOU LIKE TO:

- train in general practice and develop an interest in a hospital specialty at the same time?
- live in one of the most stunning, beautiful and diverse regions of the UK?
- spend time working at a fantastic new hospital facility?

ENTRY AT ST1

We're looking to select enthusiastic doctors hoping to start their GP training, with or without experience in their chosen hospital special interest. You will work for an average of one session a week in the hospital specialty of your choice throughout your training programme, with a nominated mentor, to train you to middle grade hospital specialist level. This programme will continue as long as you receive Satisfactory Progress at your ARCP panels.

POST CCT

We also welcome trained GPs and those nearing completion of GP training who wish to undertake a year working 50% of their time training in a hospital specialism and 50% in a GP practice.

Special interests available: emergency medicine, acute medicine, elderly care medicine, general surgery, obstetrics & gynaecology, paediatrics, ophthalmology, endocrinology and palliative care.
